

Worksheet #6a

Identifying and punctuating adjective clauses

For the below sentences (some courtesy of faculty.ucc.edu/english-ishill/AdjectiveClauses.htm) place brackets around the adjective clause in each sentence, label it restrictive (necessary) or nonrestrictive (unnecessary), and properly punctuate it.

1. The man who is eating in the cafeteria is my father.
2. Dr. Smith who works at Union County College has his office on the Cranford Campus.
3. The Elizabeth Campus which is one of the three campuses of Union County College is on East. Jersey Street.
4. The bookstores which are located on each campus also sell t-shirts.
5. The highway that I take to the college has a toll.
6. My aunt who lives in Elizabethtown works at the college.
7. My friends who are also studying at UCC live in New York.
8. Bill Gates whom I admire has donated a lot of money to schools.
9. The college whose main campus is in Cranford has three campuses.
10. The year 1972 when the Viet Nam War ended was also the year that I moved to the United States.
11. The city where I was born has recently built a mall.
12. Bill Gates who founded Microsoft lives in Washington State.
13. The novel which was written by John Grisham is sold in the bookstore.
14. I will get to see my two nieces who live Norway.
15. Kaidan who is now seven and a half has flown on several planes already.
16. The Merchant of Venice which is a play spoken in early Renaissance English is very well done except for the unnecessary nudity.
17. Merchant of Venice should be all right to watch although you might not understand it all.