

T6

ACROSS

3. limitations imposed by scientific principles or limited resources
7. the degree to which income exceeds cost
8. facts or figures which can be processed and from which conclusions may be formed
12. the ability of resources to be replenished in a time short enough to be useful to people
13. equipment used in a computer system, including the keyboard, disk drives, tape storage, central processor
14. an adjustment of conflicting demands or requirements in which something is given up on each side

DOWN

1. a resource which is suitable for a particular application
2. a standard, rule, or test by which a judgment of something can be made
4. the process of obtaining the solution that best satisfies all the criteria within the established computer programs (which instruct the computer to execute a specific task or tasks)
5. the best or most favorable conditions: and ideal
6. the components necessary for technology including: people, information, materials, tool and machines
9. a picture, map, or graph used for illustration or demonstration
10. the process or end result of reaching a workable compromise