Wanted to share a really great assignment Cassie Pruitt just completed with her English students, Poetry Out Loud. Her students memorized and recited poetry of their choosing in front of judges and were rated on their performance. Her 15:1 students were amazing and confident and did a wonderful job with her encouragement and teaching, despite being well outside their comfort zones!

As part of our Overcoming Barriers Through Resilience Unit, students read Gary Schmidt's novel, Okay for Now, the story of an 8th grader who navigates dysfunction and finds inner strength through Audubon's art. Students went on a field trip to the Memorial Art Gallery during which they selected artwork that they felt told a story of resilience.

As a final showcase of this experience, our 8th graders will act as docents of their art pieces during a special event at the Memorial Art Gallery this week. Students under the leadership of Kendra Lamb will also be playing music at the event.

I would like to do a Shout Out! to Dave Luce and his crew, even though they're not teachers. Dave is our head custodian at TCMS.

Dave is available at the drop of a dime to help everyone out.

Dave reads his emails very early in the morning and makes sure to have time to juggle all our crazy requests and make them happen....fast!

He has specifically helped me out at the very last minute, so that instruction could continue seamlessly and teaching could take place at the auditorium.

Dave makes things happen quickly, efficiently and always with a friendly and kind disposition.

A huge thank you to Dave Luce and his crew on behalf of the Foreign Language Department for always stepping up and helping out with a smile on their faces!
