

Paradise Lost

Book IV

The following question was designed by Al Drake, Ph.D., professor of English Literature at U of CA, Irvine, for his E211: British Literature to 1760 course. Use this question to help you craft a one-page, double spaced, mini-essay.

Read the fine account that Eve gives of her first day of life, lines 449-91. What is the significance of her first act, that of seeing her reflection in a pool? What warning, however mild, does this scene give us about Eve?

Guidelines:

- Provide a clear thesis with specific subject and direction.
- Use precision in your writing; the most eloquent writing is succinct. Impress me with your thoughts, not your words!
- Of course, never use contractions or personal pronouns in formal writing.
- Include evidence in your essay.

Paradise Lost

Book IV

The following question was designed by Al Drake, Ph.D., professor of English Literature at U. of CA, Irvine, for his E211: British Literature to 1760 course. Use this question to help you craft a one-page, double spaced, mini-essay.

Read the fine account that Eve gives of her first day of life, lines 449-91. What is the significance of her first act, that of seeing her reflection in a pool? What warning, however mild, does this scene give us about Eve?

Guidelines:

- Provide a clear thesis with specific subject and direction.
- Use precision in your writing; the most eloquent writing is succinct. Impress me with your thoughts, not your words!
- Of course, never use contractions or personal pronouns in formal writing.
- Include evidence in your essay.